“ I just wanted to let you know how sorry I am for you and your family with Jacks passing. Jack and I was best friends from 5th grade up to when he married Deb Lee. Married people do their thing and single people do theirs so we drifted apart. But there was a time when Jack and I was always together. I remember when I was 11 and he was 12 we had found an island between the Water St bridge and the RR trussel (least it was an island to us) Jack wanted to build a raft off it and drift down the river to his grandmas place which was just downstream a small ways. So we go back to Jacks and get a hatchet which was all we could find and go back. We find a small tree that leans over to the island and Jack and I start to hatchet this little tree down. I bet we spent the better part of that day just getting that little tree down lol. But it worked it fell right over to the island. Two little boys were so happy that day. So anyways the next month we go down to the island every day and gather tree limbs old trees ect and drag them out on the island and tie them all together till we have a little raft. Jack was so excited as was I we had built this thing. Then the big day came when we was going to ride it down to Jacks grandmas. But there was a big problem it was too heavy to move for two boys. Jack had seen in a show to slide logs under it so we found some old logs and tried it and it worked!!!! Anyway a couple of hours later we had it in the water. Jack jumps on with a stick then me with mine. We start to row and about 1/4 of the way down to Jacks grandmas house a log comes loose. Then another and another. Jack is freaking out trying to stay on this thing and save it. He has me trying to hold one end while he tries to hold the rest together at the other end. By 1/2 way to his grandmas the other end of the raft starts to untie also. Now Jack is mad. He goes over to the other edge and the whole raft comes apart in the middle of the river. Into the river he goes with me soon behind. I think I'm gonna drown and Jack yells stand up and we are like only in 3 or 4 ft of water lol. We walk over to the bank totally soaked look at each other all full of river mud and just start laughing so hard at each other. We walk back to our bikes and Jack looks at me and laughs and says well I don't think we will try that again. We get on our bikes and start down Water street and a chopper motorcycle with long forks out the front goes flying by us. Jack was like WOW I want to do that to my bicycle and so begins his new idea. But that is another story. We had just reconnected this year on facebook and was going to get together shoot some pool and talk about old days. But with me at a new job and working on my place I put it off to long. But know this Jack was a awesome friend to me in them days. We had many many great times together back then. I will cherish those memories of our friendship. Jack was true friend. He will be missed. I wish you and your familys all the best in getting through this vert difficult time. My heart goes out to you all.
