“ I know it took me a couple years to put something here, but I finally am. I remember being little kids and hanging out after school, or talking in the lunchroom. We had this little bush hideout outside of your trailer where we would sit in and just talk for hours. I know we kinda fell out about the last year before you passed, but I always considered you one of my favorite friends, and was heartbroken when you passed. I think about you still and wish that you would've been able to fill the potential of your life.

“ I remember this time when we were little, in middle school when we had caterpillars and the they turned into butterflies and we had to release them and she was so upset. She cried, and I hugged her the whole time, it was so sweet, she said she wished she could be a butterfly, and I said to her “how about you be my butterfly?” From that day on she was my little butterfly, I am now getting this tattoo in honor of her. My beautiful butterfly I'll forever miss you 🦋❤️

“ Mia Ann, beautiful baby girl, I know you don't remember me much but I have wonderful memories of you! From our shopping to our lunch dates I helped spoiled you like you were my own! Your smile was addicting just like your uncle Josh's! We love you sweetie and tell your uncle hello for us! I promise he will keep you under his angel wings as you learn to use yours
